The Times is a Muddle. The London Times comes to us again this series, full charged with stelld projudice and tation, in which ignorance and sinsoling vie with each other for pre-e ninence. After a column of sephistry intended to place the Southern Mutiny on a par with the American Revolution, the Times comes to the conclusion that it is entirely in harmony with American institutions In illustration and suppert of this position, it parades its ridiculous gnerance in the following statement.

ignorance in the following statement.

It can hardly be said that the American have he any power meet. The civil war itself have been organized and conducted by a self-appointed "Committee" stiting in New York, and one correspondince from the spot informed us that without us so a special to of ship Committee the Si preme Gavernment would have been "paralyzat." Good for the Union Defence Committee

They will certainly take courage and comfort to find themselves connected, in some body's mind, with something besides jobbery, intrigue and mismanagement. They have "erganized and conducted the war"-though they have fallen far en sugh short of " organizing and conducting" the fourteen regiments, whose hopes have been vainly pinned upon them. Our next file of the Times will doubtless contain news of GRORGE LAW'S insurrection in the newspapers, and of the insallation of that redoubtable chieftain as military dietator at Washington with the successful occupation of Northern and Western Virginia under his direction.

But the Times is evidently in a state of be wilderment. It flounders through a confused series of self-contradictions, as if wholly unabis to decide upon its own state of mind, or up on any consistent theory. In one desperate gasp it vents the malignant falsehood that the loyal states are 'enforcing at the secord's point the doctrines of legitimacy and toryism" and in the next it "admits that this revolution has not been provoked," and that "the southerners have no real care against their northern broth ren;" while a little farther on it tacks suddenly around and declares-what it can no longer con ceal from itself-that "If is abould turn out that, notwithstanding the Lord Chanceller's purion that such an act would be murcer, Englishmen caugat in Ausrican privateers are hanged as pirates, there will be a strong inclination in England to hold that they deserve their fate. We bettere if it should sunfortunately happen that Privateers should steal, that the public would see with great actisfaction has merchan; who formished the war its stoca, the shapbuilder who formished the war its stoca, the shapbuilder who formished the shap, and the captis who commanded he all punish it hyether as confederates. This, however, is contarry to the law of net one, and Lord Ellennopout offers to all such effenders the consolation that some time after they have been caught and hanged variety with e as sevent alpionatio protest convered on "If it should turn out that, notw

The gentle subsidence of Borrom's lien into the accents of a sucking dove, was nothing to the cave of the British quadruped, in the extract above quoted. To any placky British reader, however, who may take offence at th travesty, we concede the benefit of the doubt (if there be any) whether the quadruped in question is the British Lion or the Bitsh Ass.

MOTLEY, the distinguished American histotian, has employed his brilliant ta'ents in an is portant service to his country, by publishing and powerful expositions of the cause of the American Union in the present conflict, which has been produced here or elsewhere. It firts a page or more of the London Times, in two consecutive numbers, and by the fame of its au ther and the charm of his elequence, will se cure the attention of every thoughtful reads. in England, and do a great work in undecaiving and enlightening British public opinion.

The Rebel Forces.

GENTLEMEN who have recently arrived from the southern states say that the representations made of the numbers of the rebel forces who have entered Virginia are greatly exaggerated. Companies of fifty or sixty men have been, by the telegraph, or the sec-s-ion journals, magnified into the imposing proportions of full regis ents. It is confidently asserted in military circles that the rebels have not 50,000 organized and equipped troops in Virginia. though they claim to have 100,009 men; and the wavering and timid movements of their leaders prevenit.

Liquienant-General Scorr is not only well irformed of the ferces which the rabels can bring into so ion at any point, but of everything releng to the condition of the rebel army. He is confident that in two short campaigns he can suppress the rebeltion and reestablish the authority of the Government in all the states of the Union

A Good Brau.v. We understand that initiatory stees buy been taken by influential citizens in the second wards of the city, to organize a movement for the rescue of the city from the eformous texa tion which has been imposed on it for the been fit of favored contractors and their friends in the City Government.

The taxes for the next year are estimated at $14 000 000, all of which must come from the business and working population of the city. We have a population, according to the ask census, of about 850,000 but deducting from that enum-ration the mon who have voluntion ed into the rervice of the Uniter States, and those who, by the sispension of business, havbeen obliged to temove to the country discricts ing less than 800,600 to pay the $11,000,0 t million of taxes. The adult male o pala tion of the city is less than 290,000, so that the average taxation will be nearly $70 each fir every map.

Tte Attitude of England Ir wou'd be a mistake to suppose that the sneering and selfish language which has been lately addressed to our Government by a portion of the gress and Parliament of England represents fauly the fe ling of the English people. It is the aristocra-y of that eminently conservative and calculating country who take in this style As an aristocracy that sympathize with the eligarcaical power of the Southern Conf.deracy. As an aristocracy they look with ill-d sguised pleas re at the destruction which secos to threaten this Union. As an aristocracy they love to ex ggerate the apparent weakness of our democratic form of govern ment. It is but natural and characteristi that they should thus feel and reckon: for the success of a great popular government on this side of the water would be a continual reprouch and threat to an eligerchy on the other. We must not, then fore, for the present, expect anything generous or just, in this retard from the rulers of England. In bar corporate capacity she has never been in the habit of saying or doing generor s things. But we believe that the great heart of the people of England is with us To them, the

the hope of western civilization, the guaranty of western liberty; while the Southern Confederacy, self styled "The Great Slave Republic," ounded on feudalism and built up by mondac ty and theft, is utterly hateful. Our megnif cent popular uprising of the last six weeks will be halled by the people of England as a new and hopeful evidence of the power of our de neeracy, and if, in view of such an exhibition the British Ministry will not do its duty, it will be forced by the people to resign.

DEPARTURE OF COL. HAWRISS' ZOUAVAS-NIPTH REGIMENT, B. Y. S. V .- Col. HAW-EIPS' regiment left for the seat of war yesterday. Directly after breakfast yesterday, the order was given to strike the flag and vacate the camp on Riker's Island, the regimental line formed, and the column marched down to the deck and embarked. As the steamer passed the Red House, a salute was fired in its hoper, and when the stemmers resched the foot of 34th street. E. R., the excitement of the crowde bounded. Having landed, the companies were equal ized by the Adjutant. The whole strength, rank and file, number 790 ; 19 drummers and buglers, with 6 on the sick list. Company B had with them a boy, 8 years of age, whom they distinguished as "the son of the Regiment." A little after 1 o'clock the regiment broke into column, and marchet up 31 h street, through Madison averue to 38th street, into 5:1 avepue, where they halted in front of the residence of Mr. A. W. Colonel Hawkins replied that his regiment had gone forth not for the sake of gain, but for the defense of the flag their fathers had borne before them through the Revolution, in the wars of 1812 and Mexico; and as long as one man in the North was left, that flag would be deferded, and if possible brought back to New York covered with bonor.

The regiment then saluted the colors, and wheeled into column, proceeded to the house of Dr. W. A. Morfat, No. 124 Fifth Avenue, where the Rev. W. S. Willaw, of Christ church, on behalf of Mrs. Morfat, in a next speech, presented Colonel Hawkins with a rel silk regimental flag to which Colonel Hawkins appropriately responded. The regiment then marched down 5th avenue through 14th st. and Broadway to pier No. 4 N. R., enthusiastic app ause greeting them along the entire line. They embarked at once on the transport Marion, for Fortress Monroe.
